FUNERAL WEDNESDAY AT 4

Fr. Herman to Officiate at Services at Cemetery

Funeral services will be held at the grave in St. Joseph's cemetery at 4 p. m. Wednesday, Rev. Fr.
J. J. Herman officiating, for Charles G. Duffy, 67, former mayor of Circleville, whose death occured in Cleveland after a slight stroke.

Although Mr. Duffy died late Saturday news of his death did not reach Circleville until Monday evening when the Albough Co., was informed the body would arrive in Columbus Wednesday at 3:05 p. m.
Service will be held in St. Luke's church, Cleveland, at 9 a. m. Wednesday.

Served Two Terms
Mr. Duffy was one of Circleville's best-known men before removing to Cleveland 28 years ago.
He was engaged in the magazine business in Cleveland with his brother, L. Gardner Duffy, editing the American Sportsman, nationally-read magazine devoted to track and other fields of sport.

Mr. Duffy served as Circleville's mayor for two terms. He was a Democrat and a son of Margaret and the late James M. Duffy.
His mother survives in Cleveland.
Two brothers, L. Gardner of Cleveland, and Joseph B., of Columbus, survive also. He never married.

Practiced as Attorney
Mr. Duffy was graduated from the Circleville public schools and entered Yale university at an early age. He was graduated from the Yale law school before he was old enough to practice before the bar of Ohio. After reaching the legal age he practiced as an attorney in Circleville. He was also the operator of a grocery store in W. Main street for a while.

He was a veteran of the Spanish-American war, earning a captain's commission before its close.
Mr. Duffy had been in ill health for several months. He suffered a hemorrhage and a slight stroke last week, dying Saturday night at his home, 13,814 Clifton boulevard.
The pallbearers for the funeral Wednesday will be William Sharkey, Harry Howard, Charles Brannon, William Graham, Edward Caskey, Thomas McManamy, and W. F. McCready.

Edwin, Waneta, Lowell, Vivian,
and Debert; her mother, Mrs. Robert Hattfield; four brothers, J. Hatfield of Circleville, Clyde, Vern and William of Mt. Vernon, and two sisters, Mrs. Lydia Deborn of Kentucky and Mrs. Cora Lomore of Lexington, O.

END OF FRIGID WAVE FORECAST IN CENTRAL AREA

BY UNITED PRESS
General relief from the cold wave which caused three deaths and led to scores of others brought predictions of snow for 11 north central eastern states today.

Temperatures which plummeted below zero Monday rose slowly during the night.

Warmer weather accompanied by light snow was forecast today for Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Ohio, and parts of Pennsylvania and New York. Prediction for Kentucky, West Virginia, Missouri and Nebraska was "fair and warmer."

Only the eastern seaboard was expected to remain untouched until Wednesday by the draft of warm air sweeping out of the northwest.

WORK STARTS ON DARBY SCHOOL'S NEW ADDITION

Preliminary work started Monday on the construction of a new addition to the Darby school building under PWA. Six workers were assigned to the project by the National Reemployment service.
Jim and Ed Williams, of Washington C. H., are the contractors.

KING MAY MAKE FINAL DECISION IN FEW HOURS

London Waits Anxiously For Edward to Decide Between Great Love and Duty

WALLY ISSUES STATEMENT

Baldwin Ready to Visit Fort to Learn Ruler's Verdict

LONDON, Dec. 8.—(UP)—
Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin left No. 10 Downing street at 3:48 p. m., accompanied by Walter T. Monckton, attorney general of the duchy of Cornwall and the king's personal counsel. They were headed for Fort Belvedere.

LONDON, Dec. 8.—(UP)—
King Edward may make his final choice between love and duty within a few hours.

Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin
awaited a summons to Fort Belvedere to receive final word from King Edward whether he adheres to his insistence on marrying Mrs.
Wallis Warfield Simpson even though it cost him his throne.

A decision by the king would be followed by an emergency cabinet meeting.

An influential statesman cognizant of all moves in the emergency suggested tomorrow night as the deadline for a decision.

Other sources thought that it might come today.

In any event, it was said, if the king was unable to make up his mind he would inform Baldwin before tomorrow's scheduled cabinet meeting that he required more time for a decision on which his own life happiness depends.

Might Keep Throne
Mrs. Simpson's statement at Cannes that she was willing to withdraw was regarded as a victory for the government. This statement was read to the king before it was issued and it is understood that the king's own friends, who are ready to fight for him, hoped that it might influence him to keep the throne and if necessary part from Mrs. Simpson.

But persons close to royal circles warned that Mrs. Simpson's statement should not be read as a portent of the king's willingness to give up Mrs. Simpson without further demur.

Though they believed the king's decision was near, believed that he must make his choice if for no other reason because there were

TEACHERS NAME SUPT. WILLIAMS IN AFFIDAVITS

WEST UNION, Dec. 8.—(UP)— Four grade school teachers at Winchester, near here, returned to classes today after filing affidavits charging misconduct against Superintendent C. O. Williams with the clerk of the board of education.

The exact contents of the affidavits were not made public. Williams could not be reached for comment.

A hearing on the affidavits will be held before the board Thursday night.

Classes at the Winchester school were suspended yesterday and part of today after the teachers walked out following a dispute with Williams over extra work he had asked them to do. It was reported they had been asked to direct a high school play.

Senate Resumes Study Of Unemployment Act

COLUMBUS, Dec. 8.—(UP)—Unemployment insurance legislation was to be considered today by the Ohio senate's research committee, which has before it two major proposals.

The committee, at a session last night, heard doubts whether immediate passage of a bill would permit the necessary administrative machinery to be set up soon enough to give Ohio employers credit against their federal taxes for payments into a state unemployment insurance fund.

Obtaining such credit and saving $12,000,000 which may be lost to the state otherwise has been the main argument of advocates of immediate legislative action, placing a state tax on 1936 pay-rolls to balance the federal tax already in effect.

"It is most unfortunate at this eleventh hour to try to rush this through, when the chances of getting back any of the $12,000,000 are practically nil," the committee was told by Stanley Mathewson, director of the Cincinnati employment center.

The opposite view was expressed by Prof. Edison L. Bowers of Ohio State university, technical adviser to the committee.

"It will take some fast stepping but it can be done," Bowers said.
By April 1 at the latest, both men agreed, these steps must be taken to get the tax credit; passage of the law; approval by the federal Social Security board; ap-retained control of their vast railroad empire without putting up a cent when their securities were sold at auction by New York bankers in 1935.

STEELS CLIMB

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(UP)— Stocks advanced fractions tomore than a point in moderate trading today. Steel and amusement shares were active issues.
The advance to a new six-year high in steel production brought U. S. Steel up almost a point to around 75. Bethlehem gained more than a point while Republic and American Rolling Mill gained fractionally.

No Quarantines Reported In City Or In County

noon, were informed the city is free of quarantines on contagious diseases at the present time. The next meeting of the board will be held Jan. 4.

ASHVILLE VOTES NEW GAS RATE

Village Council Suspends
Rules to Approve 5-Year
Contract; Price Lower

Ashville council took immediate action on a new 5-year gas ordinance Monday evening when it was presented by W. F. Phillips, Athens, district manager, and George Foerst, Circleville manager.

The village officials voted to suspend the rules and unanimously approved the contract.

The first two years of the new rate are at a slight reduction, Mr.
Foerst reported Tuesday, while in the last three years the price is about the same as the rate now being paid.

There are 845 Ohio Fuel Gas Co.
consumers in the village.

The utility officials agreed at Monday's meeting to extend its main to include seven families just outside the corporation limits. The extension will include 1,600 feet of pipes.

Circleville and the gas company will not discuss rates for another four years, having approved a contract about 18 months ago.

FOUR HURT WHEN CAR TURNS OVER AT JAMESTOWN

One girl was near death and three other young people, widely known in the western part of Pickaway county, were suffering painful and serious injuries Tuesday as a result of an automobile accident early Monday on U. S.
Route 35 near Jamestown, Fayette county.

Their automobile overturned on a curve.

Most seriously hurt was Evelyn Eye, daughter of Mr. and Mrs.
Debert Eye of near Washington
C. H., who is suffering a broken back. She is a patient in the Xenia hospital, and is not expected to live.

Mary E., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Vincent, of New Holland, suffered fractures of both jaws and loss of several teeth.
She is being fed through a tube.
Robert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Davis of New Holland, and Thomas Kirkpatrick, also of New Holland, known throughout the county as a member of several of New Holland's championship basketball teams, are painfully hurt.

Young Davis has a cut eye and a dislocated elbow. Kirkpatrick has a broken jaw and eight teeth broken.

Mrs. William Burns, Native of England, Opposed to Wedding

"King Edward should not marry Wallis Simpson. The marriage is against our traditions and our church."

This is the opinion of Mrs.

250 TAKE PART IN COUNTY-WIDE MUSIC FESTIVAL

Two hundred and fifty-one school children will participate in the Pickaway county Music Festival to be held Wednesday at 8:15
p. m. in the Jackson township school auditorium. There will be chorus, orchestra and band selections.

James T. Mearns, music instructor at Scioto township school, will conduct the county orchestra. Selections will be played also by the Guest Instrumental Ensemble consisting of members of the faculty of Capital university. Miss Ruth Courtright, Ashville, is piano accompanied.

The vocal program is under the direction of Miss Mary Radcliffe, music instructor at Pickaway township school. Miss Mary Tolbert, music instructor of Walnut, will be accompanist.

Glenn E. Warren, instrumental instructor at New Holland, Atlanta, Williamsport and Washington, will conduct the county band.

Following are the selections in the order they will be played, orchestra: Minuet from "The Symphony in E-Flat," by Mozart; Ballet music from "Rosamunde," by Shubert; Hungarian Dance No. 5, by Brahms and De Lamaré.

Vocal: O Come, O Come, Emanuel; Lo, What a Branch of Beauty; Cantique De Noël; Who's That A-Calling?; Jeanie With the Light Brown Hair; and The Heavens Resound.

Band: Soldiers' March from
"Faust," by Gounod; Skaters' Waltz by Waldeufel; and Military Escort by Bennett.

ALKIRE TO FACE CHECK CHARGES BEFORE EVELAND

John C. Alkire, 42, former Pickaway countian, was brought to the county jail Monday night from Mt. Sterling to answer two charges of issuing bad checks. The charges were filed in H. O. Eve-land's justice of peace court.

He is accused of issuing a $5
check to Charles Smith, S. Court street, and a $2 check to Melvin Yates, E. Franklin street, on banks in which he carried no accounts.

Alkire was arrested by Harry Dixon, constable at Mt. Sterling.

BAILEY DENIES FIRING GUN AT FEDERAL AGENTS

COLUMBUS, Dec. 8.—(UP)— Reese Bailey, 30, desperado from North Carolina, limped into federal courtroom here today and pleaded not guilty to an indictment charging him with assault upon G-men with a deadly weapon.

Bailey was ordered held under $50,000 bond. Federal Judge Mell
G. Underwood set Dec. 10 as the trial date.

Wanted in North Carolina and Washington on armed robbery, fugitive and interstate auto theft charges, Bailey was captured by department of justice agents after a gun battle at his farm hideout in Jackson county, Ohio, on Nov.
13. He was wounded in the leg.

The G-men whom Bailey was alleged to have fired were Earl J. Connelly and A. P. Barber.

MADRID AWAITS MAJOR ASSAULT BY REBEL FORCE

MADRID, Dec. 8.—(UP)— Rebels moved fresh, shock troops into their front lines at daybreak today, a sure sign, government spokesmen said that the expected
"big" attack on Madrid was about to start.

Tired insurgents, who have battered away at the Spanish capital for more than a month were sent to the rear in reserve as troops took over their positions.

Madrid was subjected to an all-night artillery bombardment —
"preparation" in military terminology — which shook buildings two miles behind the front lines. The rebels concentrated their fire on the northwestern part of the city to make way for their infantry.

It was learned that more than 29 car loads of arms and munitions and about 40 new airplanes have been brought up to the railroad behind the rebel lines within the last few days.

MOORE IS FINED FOR THEFT OF SUGAR SUPPLY

Joseph Moore, 28, of E. Ohio street, was fined $50 and costs by Mayor W. J. Graham Monday for the theft of several sacks of sugar from a local grocery Saturday night. He was committed to the Columbus workhouse and taken to the institution by Police Chief William McCready.

Even Merriman, city, posted $200 bond in police court Monday night to appear for hearings Wednesday on charges of assault and battery and threatening to kill.
The charges were filed by Merri-man's former wife, Mary R. Merriman, and grew out of a quarrel Sunday night.

LOSS OF LIFE ENORMOUS

Relief Being Organized For Stricken Provinces

MANILA, Dec. 8.—(UP)—Thousands were missing today as the Grande De Cagayan river, swollen by last week's typhoon, burst its banks and went roaring through Luzon island's fertile valleys.

Fifty-four barrios—native villages—were reported under water.

Communication with Isabela and Nueva Vizcaya provinces, where flood waters described as 36 feet above the normal river stage, was broken off.

Lieut. Pedro Dionisio, a constabulary commander stationed at Echague, in Isabela province, said the loss of life was "enormous."

Manila Aid Sought

Dionisio beat the flood water to his headquarters and got off a telegram for help to Manila before the rushing torrent disrupted communication.

"The gravest flood in the pro-vince's history has submerged Isabela," he said. "I believe thousands of persons have been swept away. Twenty dead in Cagayan are accounted for. No reports received from the towns and barrios around Ilagan as they are submerged. I have just arrived from the flooded areas and I believe the loss of life will be enormous. All communications disrupted."

The postmaster at Alcala, in Cagayan province, reported the water was about six feet over the tops of telegraph poles, with the river 36 feet above normal and many houses floating downstream.

Report after report came in from the stricken area, none of which could give an accurate estimate of the loss of life but which, when added together, confirmed

PLANE JOURNEYS TOWARD CANNES ON MYSTERY HOP

LONDON, Dec. 8.—(UP)—A special airplane left Croydon, the great London airport, this morning with three unidentified men aboard, reported to be government officials.

Authorities refused to disclose the purpose of the flight or the identity of the passengers, whose only luggage was one small suitcase.

The plane was specially chartered from British Airways at Gatwick, whence it was flown to Croydon where the three passengers awaited it. Gatwick is 30 miles south of London.

There was one rumor that the passengers were a physician and two home office officials — and another that they were newspaper men.

Croydon reported that the plane arrived at Paris about noon and immediately continued to Cannes.

Bowers Opposites

The opposite view was expressed by Prof. Edison L. Bowers of Ohio State university, technical adviser to the committee.

"It will take some fast stepping but it can be done," Bowers said.

By April 1 at the latest, both men agreed, these steps must be taken to get the tax credit: passage of the law; approval by the federal Social Security board; ap-

ASHVILLE VOTES NEW GAS RATE

Village Council Suspends
Rules to Approve 5-Year
Contract; Price Lower

Ashville council took immediate action on a new 5-year gas ordinance Monday evening when it was presented by W. F. Phillips, Athens, district manager, and George Foerst, Circleville manager.

The village officials voted to suspend the rules and unanimously approved the contract.

The first two years of the new rate are at a slight reduction, Mr. Foerst reported Tuesday, while in the last three years the price is about the same as the rate now being paid.

There are 845 Ohio Fuel Gas Co. consumers in the village.

The utility officials agreed at Monday's meeting to extend its mains to include seven families just outside the corporation limits. The extension will include 1,600 feet of pipes.

Circleville and the gas company will not discuss rates for another four years, having approved a contract about 18 months ago.

FOUR HURT WHEN CAR TURNS OVER AT JAMESTOWN

One girl was near death and three other young people, widely known in the western part of Pickaway county, were suffering painful and serious injuries Tuesday as a result of an automobile accident early Monday on U. S. Route 35 near Jamestown, Fayette county.

Their automobile overturned on a curve.

Most seriously hurt was Evelyn Eye, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Eye of near Washington C. H., who is suffering a broken back. She is a patient in the Xenia hospital, and is not expected to live.

Mary E., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Vincent, of New Holland, suffered fractures of both jaws and loss of several teeth. She is being fed through a tube. Robert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Davis of New Holland, and Thomas Kirkpatrick, also of New Holland, known throughout the county as a member of several of New Holland's championship basketball teams, are painfully hurt. Young Davis has a cut eye and a dislocated elbow. Kirkpatrick has a broken jaw and eight teeth broken.

Mrs. William Burns, Native of England, Opposed to Wedding

"King Edward should not marry Wallis Simpson. The marriage is against our traditions and our church."

This is the opinion of Mrs. William Burns, E. Franklin street, who was born and reared in England, coming to this country when she was 25 years of age.

Mrs. Burns said she has been sending local papers to relatives in England for more than 30 years. First reports about the romance were considered a "big joke" by her relatives.

Mrs. Burns' home was in Witham Friary near Bath, about 110 miles from London. Two brothers and three sisters, live in England. Mrs. Burns visited in England seven years ago.

Advocates Castor Oil Justice

If Justice Frank Yuse of Seattle, Wash., has his way, it will be a drink—of castor oil—or jail for intoxicants. A pint-size dose is the remedy he suggests for chronic drunks. He is now conferring with legal and medical authorities in an effort to justify the castor oil "treatment."

250 TAKE PART IN COUNTY - WIDE MUSIC FESTIVAL

Two hundred and fifty-one school children will participate in the Pickaway county Music Festival to be held Wednesday at 8:15 p. m. in the Jackson township school auditorium. There will be chorus, orchestra and band selections.

James T. Mearns, music instructor at Scioto township school, will conduct the county orchestra. Selections will be played also by the Guest Instrumental Ensemble consisting of members of the faculty of Capital university. Miss Ruth Courtwright, Ashville, is piano accompanist.

The vocal program is under the direction of Miss Mary Radcliffe, music instructor at Pickaway township school. Miss Mary Tolbert, music instructor of Walnut, will be accompanist.

Glenn E. Warren, instrumental instructor at New Holland, Atlanta, Williamsport and Washington, will conduct the county band.

Following are the selections in the order they will be played, orchestra: Minuet from "The Symphony in E-Flat," by Mozart; Ballet music from "Rosamunde," by Schubert; Hungarian Dance No. 5, by Brahms and De Lamater.

Vocal: O Come, O Come, Emanuel; Lo, What a Branch of Beauty; Canticle De Noel; Who's That A-Calling?; Jeanie With the Light Brown Hair, and The Heavens Resound.

Band: Soldiers' March from "Faust," by Gounod; Skaters' Waltz by Waldeufel, and Military Escort by Bennet.

ALKIRE TO FACE CHECK CHARGES BEFORE EVELAND

John C. Alkire, 42, former Pickaway countian, was brought to the county jail Monday night from Mt. Sterling to answer two charges of issuing bad checks. The charges were filed in H. O. Eveland's justice of peace court.

He is accused of issuing a $5 check to Charles Smith, S. Court street, and a $2 check to Melvin Yates, E. Franklin street, on banks in which he carried no accounts.

Alkire was arrested by Harry Dixon, constable at Mt. Sterling.

BAILEY DENIES FIRING GUN AT FEDERAL AGENTS

COLUMBUS, Dec. 8.—(UP)—Reese Bailey, 30, desperado from North Carolina, limped into federal courtroom here today and pleaded not guilty to an indictment charging him with assault upon G-men with a deadly weapon.

Bailey was ordered held under $50,000 bond. Federal Judge Mell G. Underwood set Dec. 10 as the trial date.

Wanted in North Carolina and Washington on armed robbery, fugitive and interstate auto theft charges, Bailey was captured by department of justice agents after a gun battle at his farm hideout in Jackson county, Ohio, on Nov. 13. He was wounded in the leg.

The G-men whom Bailey was alleged to have fired were Earl J. Connelly and A. P. Barber.

MADRID AWAITS MAJOR ASSAULT BY REBEL FORCE

MADRID, Dec. 8.—(UP)—Rebels moved fresh, shock troops into their front lines at daybreak today, a sure sign, government spokesmen said that the expected "big" attack on Madrid was about to start.

Tired insurgents, who have battered away at the Spanish capital for more than a month were sent to the rear in reserve as troops took over their positions.

Madrid was subjected to an all-night artillery bombardment — "preparation" in military terminology — which shook buildings two miles behind the front lines. The rebels concentrated their fire on the northwestern part of the city to make way for their infantry.

It was learned that more than 29 car loads of arms and munitions, and about 40 new airplanes have been brought up to the railroad behind the rebel lines within the last few days.

MOORE IS FINED FOR THEFT OF SUGAR SUPPLY

Joseph Moore, 28, of E. Ohio street, was fined $50 and costs by Mayor W. J. Graham Monday for the theft of several sacks of sugar from a local grocery Saturday night. He was committed to the Columbus workhouse and taken to the institution by Police Chief William McCrady.

Even Merriam, city, posted $200 bond in police court Monday night to appear for hearings Wednesday on charges of assault and battery and threatening to kill. The charges were filed by Merriam's former wife, Mary R. Merriam, and grew out of a quarrel Sunday night.

LOSS OF LIFE ENORMOUS

Relief Being Organized For
Stricken Provinces

MANILA, Dec. 8.—(UP)—Thousands were missing today as the Grande De Cagayan river, swollen by last week's typhoon, burst its banks and went roaring through Luzon island's fertile valleys.

Fifty-four barrios—native villages—were reported under water.

Communication with Isabela and Nueva Vizcaya provinces, where flood waters described as 36 feet above the normal river stage, was broken off.

Lieut. Pedro Dionisio, a constabulary commander stationed at Echague, in Isabela province, said the loss of life was "enormous."

Manila Aid Sought

Dionisio beat the flood water to his headquarters and got off a telegram for help to Manila before the rushing torrent disrupted communication.

"The gravest flood in the province's history has submerged Isabela," he said. "I believe thousands of persons have been swept away. Twenty dead in Cagayan are accounted for. No reports received from the towns and barrios around Ilagan as they are submerged. I have just arrived from the flooded areas and I believe the loss of life will be enormous. All communications disrupted."

The postmaster at Alcalá, in Cagayan province, reported the water was about six feet over the tops of telegraph poles, with the river 36 feet above normal and many houses floating downstream.

Report after report came in from the stricken area, none of which could give an accurate estimate of the loss of life but which, when added together, confirmed

PLANE JOURNEYS TOWARD CANNES ON MYSTERY HOP

LONDON, Dec. 8.—(UP)—A special airplane left Croydon, the great London airport, this morning with three unidentified men aboard, reported to be government officials.

Authorities refused to disclose the purpose of the flight or the identity of the passengers, whose only luggage was one small suitcase.

The plane was specially chartered from British Airways at Gatwick, whence it was flown to Croydon where the three passengers awaited it. Gatwick is 30 miles south of London.

There was one rumor that the passengers were a physician and two home office officials — and another that they were newspaper men.

Croydon reported that the plane arrived at Paris about noon and immediately continued to Cannes.

ITALIANS PUSH ONWARD SLOWLY IN NEW EMPIRE

Pacific First Goal of Il Duce's Men in New Ethiopian Nation

OVER 90,000 AT WORK

Soldiers Used to Subdue Bandits; Natives Flee

By JAMES ROHRBAUGH
United Press Staff Correspondent
ADDIS ABABA, Dec. 8.—(UP)
The gigantic Italian war machine is slowly but surely being replaced by an equally ponderous peace machine designed to make a 20th century Ethiopian empire from a nation which has slumbered blissfully for 2,000 years. But until the transition is completed it seems apparent the strict military censorship will continue.

Facing the Italians is the task of reconstructing the property wasted during the recent war, settlement of vast plateaus, the rebuilding of the cities on new lines, construction of modern highways and development of the country's potentialities.

Considering the fact that Ethiopia never has produced an artist builder, scientist, or even a good class of skilled workmen, it becomes apparent that Italy will receive little help from the native population in carrying out empire building.

90,000 in Labor Corps

Italy has undertaken the task of developing this country and is throwing its full resources into the work. At present more than 90,000 workers are busily engaged in the various tasks preliminary to the real work of settlement. While armies clear the countryside of rebellious natives, roads must be built, land must be surveyed and regions must be tested to discover what best can be produced there. Airdromes are being constructed which will be suitable for all seasons of the year, although their whereabouts are being carefully kept secret. Companies of uniformed workers march from barracks to work and build roads, houses, offices and shops. The program here is build, build, build.

The final plans for the street system of the capital have not been completed, nor have the styles of architecture to be used for the new city been determined. Architects are on their way to Addis Ababa from Rome to draw up plans for the permanent city. In the meantime the old city is serving as a base of operations for the government and every possible building has been pressed into service as an office, shop, barracks or police station.

Housing Problem Exists

"The foreign quarter was damaged during the riots prior to the Italian occupation, so there has been a great housing shortage. There are not enough buildings for dwelling, not to mention the demand for office and shop space. No one has built permanently, waiting to see what form the new city will take. Even native huts have been pressed into service and will be destroyed when the new city rises.

The diesel motored trucks which rumble night and day through the city would wreck even the best of roads, and constant repair is necessary. The mules and donkeys which once paraded sedately through the center of town are seen no more.

Two groups of 100 workers each have been placed in the regions east and west of Addis Ababa. These are experimental settlements and will be supported by the government until colonists clear the land and start making it pay.

Open Experimental Stations

A large experimental station has been opened at Negrehilli and others shortly will be opened in other regions. Simultaneously, experts in all lines are appraising the country and seeking to determine its usefulness.

In the meantime, the army is busily engaged in pacifying the country. Whenever a region is definitely cleared of bandits legions of workmen enter and start opening it for travel and commerce.

The task ahead is tremendous and the government is so determined it will not fail that few risks are being taken. Cautious, steady advance seems to be the watchword. The task is not being accomplished painlessly nor without great inconveniences for those living here. Growing pains are evident, but there have been no real food shortages, no epidemics or other pestilence to retard work.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

Glamorous Mae West goes rural in her latest mirthquake, "Go West Young Man," a riotous comedy of love on the farm, which is playing at the Cliftona Theatre last night.

Cast as a high-strung movie star whose romantic life is curbed by a clause in her contract, Miss West meets and falls in love with Randolph Scott, an automobile mechanic and inventor on a Pennsylvania farm. Warren William, cast as her press agent, has the unenviable job of seeing to it that she lives up to her contract and the means he employs to insure it add much to the general hilarity of the goings-on.

Lyle Talbot is another of the swains bidding for the curvaceous blonde's favor and it is from these three that Miss West ultimately selects her man. Also in the film are Alice Brady, Isabel Jewell, Elizabeth Patterson, Margaret Perry Etienne Girardot, Maynard Holmes, Alice Ardell and "Nico-demus."

AT THE GRAND

Portraits of the leading players listed in the cast of the Warner Bros. picture "Anthony Adverse," now showing at the Grand Theatre were sent to Hervey Allen, author of the famous novel, by Director Mervyn LeRoy. These portraits were in character and costume as the players appear in the film.

LeRoy asked the writer to check the photographs of Fredric March, Olivia de Havilland, Claude Rains, Anita Louise, Edmund Gwenn, Louis Hayward, and some thirty other principals of the story, to see how closely they tallied with his own mental picture of the characters he created.

AT THE CIRCLE

The poignant strains of "Rose Marie, I Love You" were interrupted by "The Colored Man's Itch," the kind of dance that makes strong men weak, as Gilda Gray returned to the screen in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Rose Marie," now showing at the Circle Theatre.

Exponent of the operatic piece was Jeanette MacDonald who, as Rose Marie, tries to earn an honest nickel by invading the honky-tonk cafe territory of the blonde Gilda.

Music

The grades are working on a Christmas operetta, "The Magi's Gift." It will be presented Dec. 24. The band has decided to have regular practice rehearsals every week on Thursday after school. The rehearsals began last Thursday.

The following boys sang solos at the minstrel: Robert Balthaser, Charles Young, Lee Sherman, Everett Beers, Robert Smith, Gerald Bowman and Berman Calvert.

Neal Brown and Eugene Reed danced a clog.

First Grade

We have a new pupil in our room, Lloyd Barton from Ashville.

Second Grade

We were sorry to lose one of our pupils, Nellie Rutler, who moved to Columbus. For our attendance of 98.3 per cent we received a book and the six weeks attendance banner.

Third Grade

Billy Ruh won the prize in spelling this six weeks. The honor roll for this six weeks consists of the following: Rosemary Barr, Dorothy Christian, Gladys Haller, Wayne Jones, Oscar Rutter, Oscar Rutter moved to Oakland and is now attending school there. Shirley Ramey from Davisville, Ky., has entered the third grade.

Eighth Grade

Paul Ruh has decided to quit school and go to work. To replace him, Donald Barton has been transferred from Ashville.

The honor roll for the second six weeks shows Jeanette Spangler leading the class. Others on the honor roll include Dorothy McCain, Marjorie Miller, Dorothy Mayberry, Erma Hoffman, Eloise Hay, Helen Christy, John Weaver, Martha Jean Barr, Sarah Fee, Ruth Barr and Ethel Kook.

In an every pupil test (English) given to high school and junior high classes, the eighth grade ranked rather high. Marjorie Miller received the highest in the eighth grade.

The High School Honor Roll

Freshmen: Maxine Gray, Metta Mae Hickman, Jane Rohr, Martha Trone and Paul Bowers and James Brown.

Sophomores: Helen McCord and Barbara Stellhorn, Helen Young, Stanley Lewis, Junior Miller and Robert Perrill.

F. F. A.

The pest hunt, being sponsored by the F.F.A., will end in a few days. There are over 2,000 pests recorded as being killed and given to the recorder. The pests are hawks, crows, pigeons, starlings, rats, mice and sparrows. Ten hawks have been turned in, several crows and a larger number of other pests.

A pest hunt is a very good thing for these reasons: 1st by killing these pests it saves the farmer a considerable amount of money; 2nd it saves a portion of the crops after they are harvested.

On Thursday, Dec. 10, a "talkie" moving-picture, several reels sent out by the International Harvester company, will be presented in the Walnut township school auditorium.

Agriculture

The agriculture classes presented their annual minstrel last week. It was entitled, "Gentlemen, Be Seated." Mr. Bowne, with the help of Miss Tolbert, directed the show. The show opened at 8 o'clock with a song by the endmen. A large crowd was present for an evening's entertainment by those black faced entertainers.

Home Economics

Attractive lettering is pleasing on any poster or notebook sheet. The sophomore home economics girls are studying ways of making their lettering more acceptable. Different types of print and ways of making letters are being studied by this class. The foundation rules of proportion, balance, harmony, emphasis and rhythm are being discussed and applied to work on color, line and shapes.

Red, yellow and blue are the three primary colors. The colors on the color wheel are more interesting but more difficult to remember. Colors and their combinations in harmony and design provide a study for the freshman home economics girls.

This work will lead into a unit of Christmas gift work. In this each girl will plan and complete some gift to be used at home.

Miss Katherine Kane visited the home economics department Tuesday and demonstrated to the girls the use, care and efficiency of the Westinghouse electric ranges that were purchased for the kitchen.

ICKES DEMANDS WPA PROJECT GRANTS BE CUT

Sharp Curtailment Advised in Construction Loans Within Next Year

10 PERCENT GIFTS SEEN

Huge Work Fund May Be Used
Prior to January 20

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(UP)—Sharp curtailment of public works construction loans and grants to all cities except centers still facing acute unemployment problems appeared certain today as part of the government's 1937 relief retrenchment drive.

The move originated with Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes. He indicated he would need a relatively small sum next year "to round out and complete our program by making allocations for limited additional projects."

Ickes declared that PWA should immediately set about to retrench all along the line. He said:

"I am not in favor of approving projects for states or communities to which a large measure of prosperity has already returned. I am unwilling to approve the expenditure of more federal money in sections that are as prosperous as they ever have been in the past or are even more prosperous."

May Reduce Grants

Ickes also saw a way to save money by exerting his authority to reduce PWA's customary 45 per cent grants to as low as 10 per cent to cities on a firm financial basis.

"We should inquire painstakingly into the financial ability of the local community," he said, "and if we find that local resources are such that the project applied for can be built with a grant of less than 45 per cent from the federal government, then we ought to give only such a grant as is needed."

Ickes' new retrenchment policy came as Works Progress Administration directors canvassed state administrators to determine whether WPA job rolls were being reduced by the ordered 179,000 persons.

The cuts, protested by city executives and workers, are necessary, officials said, because WPA faces exhaustion of its $1,425,000,000 work appropriation by Jan. 20. Congress will be asked for more money to continue the program.

Ickes recommended in a radio address that PWA be made a permanent agency with a small staff to safeguard the country against future depressions.

CARNEGIE HALL'S OLDEST ARTIST RETURNS SUNDAY

Moriz Rosenthal, Now 74,
To Play Piano in Concerts Hour

One of Carnegie Hall's oldest and most distinguished artists returns to its famous stage after an absence of five years on Sunday evening, December 13, when Moriz Rosenthal appears as soloist in the Concert to be broadcast over a coast to coast network. It was in 1898 that Rosenthal first accomplished the astounding feat of playing to three capacity Carnegie Hall audiences in one week.

Now 74 years old, Rosenthal is one of the few remaining pupils of Franz Liszt. In his youth he knew and won the admiration of Brahms, Wagner, von Bulow and Paderewski. As Court Pianist to Franz Joseph of Austria he was the leader of Vienna's musical life, and later as a concert virtuoso he toured the capitals of the world. Always known as a great technician, Rosenthal is the author of several volumes on pianism, among them "A School for the Highest Virtuosity" and "Defense of Technique."

AMANDA SCHOOL LETS CONTRACT FOR ADDITION

Amanda board of education today announced award of contract to R. E. Bukey, Newark, Ohio, for construction of an addition to the school.

Bukey's bid of $34,092, second lowest among those submitted for the job, came in line for acceptance when the appointed contractor withdrew his low bid of between $33,000 and $34,000.

Meanwhile, expiration of the deadline for construction of the building as a WPA project threatened last week to interfere with the planned improvement.

Board members wired federal authorities for permission to extend the deadline and said today they expected a favorable reply within a few days.

CRASH OF HUGE "FLYING FORT" HURTS PROGRAM

Second Airplane Wrecked
At Boeing Field in Nation's Capital

MUCH OF MONEY TIED UP

Probe May Determine Course of Craft Builders

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(UP)—The war department's air armament program calling for 13 "flying fortresses" appeared today to be threatened by the crash of the second of the ships.

Army officials anxiously awaited findings of the board of inquiry convened immediately at Boeing field, Washington, to determine the cause of the accident which ended in the nose of the big craft and bent the blades of the four propellers. On the findings may be determined the army air corps' attitude toward continuing construction of 13 of these "flying fortresses" now under contract.

Approximately $3,250,000 of the army air corps' funds for purchase of new planes is tied up or pledged in the construction of these planes, which some air corps pilots consider still in the experimental and development stage.

"Too Much Plane"

These pilots, familiar with the two-motored bombing and transport planes now in use, believe the "flying fortress" is "too much plane" for the ordinary pilot to handle. They are equipped with four powerful motors and carry five machine guns and a ton of bombs.

In support of their opinion they cite the crash of the first of these ships built at Wright Field, Ohio, in October, 1935. Two men were killed and the plane was destroyed during final tests.

Subsequent investigation revealed that the pilot had neglected to unlock the controls before taking off with the ship.

Army pilots who had viewed the pilot's instrument board and the control mechanism of the big plane declared there were so many instruments and the control mechanism was so intricate that it would be difficult for any pilot to fly the ship successfully.

War department officials and leaders of the G. H. Q. Air force, however, expressed confidence in this biggest of all land planes. Following the Wright Field crash, they awarded a contract to the Boeing aircraft concern for construction of 13 of these big ships. They believe that the four-motored bombing ship represents a distinct step forward in aircraft construction and one which warrants development for American national defense.

BANKER FACES 55 INDICTMENTS VOTED BY JURY

NEW PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 8.—(UP)—The Tuscarawas county grand jury today charged Charles E. Wheland, former president of the Union Bank of Uhrichsville, with violations of the state banking laws in 55 counts.

The indictments were presented to Common Pleas Judge E. E. Lindsay yesterday as Wheland was held in the county jail here on default of $200,000 bond. The former banker was alleged to have defrauded the bank of $475,000.

He was charged in 44 of the counts with falsifying the bank's records of the extent of $172,082.70. Nine counts charged him with embezzlement of $375,003.08. Another count charged him with false certification of a check for $4250 and the last count with publishing a false bank statement.

The bank was closed on Oct. 27 when the alleged defalcations were discovered and Wheland under questioning said he had used the funds to gamble on the stock market.

The federal deposit insurance corporation paid out $1,500,000 to the bank's depositors and only 35 depositors now are awaiting final liquidation of the bank's assets to collect their deposits.

In the event Wheland is found guilty on all counts he could be given fines totaling $540,000 and sentenced to prison terms amounting to 1625 years.

POPE IS GAINING STRENGTH AFTER SERIOUS ILLNESS

ROME, Dec. 8.—(UP)—Pope Pius is "much improved," it was announced semi-officially today.

His personal physician, Prof. Arminio Milani visited him this morning and went away feeling optimistic.

His holiness felt so well that he tried to persuade Dr. Milani to permit him to sit up in a wheel chair in his bed room later in the day, but the physician told him to remain in bed.

Although the holy father disliked remaining inactive in bed he agreed to accept the doctor's advice and stay there today.

The pontiff is suffering from swelling of the legs, complicated by asthma. He is 79.

The pope passed a restful night. Emphasizing that his holiness had overcome the crisis and was now on the road to recovery, officials of the papal secretariat said there would be no more semi-official communications to the press.

The only fear now in the papal household is that his holiness may insist on leaving his bed tomorrow morning.

BUBONIC PLAGUE CARRIERS PERIL TO MINNESOTA

MINNEAPOLIS (UP)—The tiny insect which carries the dread bubonic plague to animals and human beings—the Oriental rat flea—has been discovered in Minnesota, according to William A. Riley, chief of the University of Minnesota Farm School's entomology department.

Writing in the Journal-Lancet, brought in (to this region) the medical publication, Dr. Riley warned that "in case a plague-infected rodent should chance to be stage is set for establishment of the infection among our local rats and for human cases as well."

No cases of the disease have been reported in this area, and all Oriental rat fleas examined thus far have been free from the plague. But the existence of these fleas in this region presents a potential hazard, Dr. Riley explained.

Last summer a number of fleas were discovered in dairy barns at the university farm school. Subsequently rats from two widely separated city dumps in St. Paul were examined and found to be carrying the fleas, he reported.

PARIS, Dec. 8.—(UP)—A French naval ship searched the south Atlantic today for the Croix Du Sud, French mail plane missing with Jean Mermoz, World War ace, and four companions.

The dispatch boat, Entre Casteaux, en route from Dakar to Douala, changed her course to search the mail plane's route.

It was said the airplane, which Mermoz was piloting from Dakar, Senegal, to Natal, Brazil, was capable of floating a week in the present weather.

Mermoz left Dakar yesterday morning and filed his last message when 420 miles out to sea. The Croix Du Sud (Southern Cross) was first missed when it failed to communicate with the east-bound mail plane City of Santiago.

At first it was thought the ship's radio might have gone out but when the great, four-motored flying boat failed to show up on schedule in Brazil at midnight last night, fears were expressed for the ship's safety.

Mermoz, 37, made the first air mail flight from Africa to South America in May, 1930. He is a war hero and was once forced down in the Sahara desert where a band of Moors held him for $1,500 ransom, he was released in Morocco after it was paid.

CHURCH SERVICE AT EVANGELICAL TO BE CONTINUED

The meetings at the Evangelical church are still in progress and will continue as long as folk are giving their hearts to God. During the past Sunday services a large group of people bowed at the altar and prayed through to definite victory in the Lord. Thus far, during the last week, sixty-three persons have confessed Christ as their savior or have come praying for a deeper work of God's grace in their lives.

In the meeting at the Evangelical church on next Friday night the largest family present will receive a nice Bible as an award. Friday night is to be observed as family night and the public is urged to come out to the meeting for this service.

The Rev. Mr. Davis is asking the fathers and mothers to come with their children, no matter how small your family, and sit together as a family group in the service. This is to be a big family reunion of all the families in Circleville. Just an old fashioned meeting in an old fashioned place.

The services at the Evangelical church begin each evening at 7:30. Go down and see what it's all about and then tell everybody you

CRASH OF HUGE "FLYING FORT" HURTS PROGRAM

Second Airplane Wrecked At Boeing Field in Nation's Capital

MUCH OF MONEY TIED UP

Probe May Determine Course of Craft Builders

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(UP)—The war department's air armament program calling for 13 "flying fortresses" appeared today to be threatened by the crash of the second of the ships.

Army officials anxiously awaited findings of the board of inquiry convoked immediately at Boeing field, Washington, to determine the cause of the accident which ended in the nose of the big craft and bent the blades of the four propellers. On the findings may be determined the army air corps' attitude toward continuing construction of 13 of these "flying fortresses" now under contract. Approximately $3,250,000 of the army air corps' funds for purchase of new planes is tied up or pledged in the construction of these planes, which some air corps pilots consider still in the experimental and development stage.

"Too Much Plane" These pilots, familiar with the two-motored bombing and transport planes now in use, believe the "flying fortress" is "too much plane" for the ordinary pilot to handle. They are equipped with four powerful motors and carry five machine guns and a ton of bombs.

In support of their opinion they cite the crash of the first of these ships built at Wright Field, Ohio, in October, 1935. Two men were killed and the plane was destroyed during final tests.

Subsequent investigation revealed that the pilot had neglected to unlock the controls before taking off with the ship.

Army pilots who had viewed the pilot's instrument board and the control mechanism of the big plane declared there were so many instruments and the control mechanism was so intricate that it would be difficult for any pilot to fly the ship successfully.

War department officials and leaders of the G. H. Q. Air force, however, expressed confidence in this biggest of all land planes. Following the Wright Field crash, they awarded a contract to the Boeing aircraft concern for construction of 13 of these big ships. They believe that the four-motored bombing ship represents a distinct step forward in aircraft construction and one which warrants development for American national defense.

PREPARE NOW
In less than three weeks the world will be poised for a great event—the observance of Christmas. In view of the part which this festival plays in the lives of individuals and of nations, it is not too early to begin to anticipate it with pleasure and even to prepare for its coming.
There is every basis for confidence that this coming Christmas will be happier by far than any in recent years. Many signs are at hand to prove that better times have returned and that those who share them are properly grateful. Not the least significant and impressive is the fact that in seventy-eight cities that have been collecting Community Chest subscriptions of late, more than $38,000,000 has been contributed.

Most conditions are favorable to a happy Christmas. Corporate dividends have been declared by the dozens, and wage and salary increases have been uncommonly numerous. Factory payrolls are up 13.6 per cent over last year, and there is a gain of 6 per cent in factory employment. According to Department of Commerce estimates, less than 9,000,000 are unemployed, the lowest figure since 1930. Farm income has increased materially, notwithstanding adverse weather conditions.
Great numbers of people, accordingly, are in a position to begin now the important and pleasant task of making their Christmas purchases. They have everything to gain by doing so. Some of the advantages may be considered as selfish while others involve thoughtful and humane considerations. Those who buy early have full stocks from which to make their selections and are not pressed and hurried by the crowds. In addition, they make somewhat easier the difficult task of the store and postal employees who, during the final days of the shopping season, must make heavy sacrifices of physical and mental energy in handling a mountain of work.

AFTER NECESSARY DATA
OFFICIALS of the Commerce Department are drafting plans for a national census of the unemployed. Congress will be asked to appropriate approximately $15,000,000 for the undertaking.
On first thought, this may seem like a large sum of money to set aside for the purpose in question. But there is reason to believe that the expenditure will save vast amounts of public funds in the long run.
Up to the present time, the Federal relief administration has been working in the dark. No one has known the exact scope of unemployment. Wastefulness

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . Hour by Hour

PAGES from the Diary of an Antiquated Reporter:
Up to a bright and snappy morning, one of the kind that makes an oldster doubt the calendar as regards his age. A great day for living. Coffee and then away to the post by wagon, finding nothing more important than a bill for dues in an organization in which membership had been forgotten. And a card from friends in Florida where it seems swimming and fishing both are good. A fine place in wintertime, that peninsula, but right now would rather be right here absorbing some of the real spirit of approaching Christmas. How can one wear a swimming suit and think properly of Santa?
Here comes Fred Tipton, the Williamsport publisher, who for six weeks has been ill, but now is much improved. And his charming wife is bundled with apparent Christmas things. Fred wishing out loud in her presence that Santa would bring him a razor for which the scrivener shows preference. He probably will.
There goes Carl Mason, of the big furniture store, who reports folk spending more money than in recent years, and here comes Bob Terhune, the educator and super-athlete. Greeted cheerily by Clarence Wolf, the grocer, whose business has grown surprisingly in the last year, and by Dr. Montgomery and Meeker Terwilliger, the barrister.

Congratulations to the organizations responsible for the fine holiday decorations at Court and Main streets and to the many merchants for their fine window displays.
See by the paper that Eddie remains king and that popular support in the empire is swinging his way. And I think he will remain ruler, for he and the big-wigs of England spent two-score years popularizing him and all that advertising effort cannot be erased in a day. The common folk appear to be for him, apparently believing that he can be a competent king even though he falls to take a so-called blueblood for a wife.
Saddened by the passing of Mrs. Mazie Louella Valentine, a near neighbor, who commanded so much respect because of her grit and cheerfulness in the face of odds she knew were overwhelming. A fine woman who will be sorely missed.

Never knew until recently when started making frequent calls at school with a home taxi that dogs have an utter lack of confidence in their eyes. Up to a half dozen dogs "attend" the Corwin school daily, awaiting their boys or girls. And not one of them knows the master or mistress by sight. Saw one dog nose two colored children, among others, before finding his mistress, a pretty little blonde. Not at all important, but interesting.
Newspapermen from all over the state assembled Sunday night and Monday in Columbus and reported business improvement and even proved it by engaging in poker tilts among themselves. For small stakes, of course. Did partake sparingly and surprisingly came away with my shirt intact. When newspapermen play poker they mean it. And do they play them close! Incidentally a full house is not always the best hand. It cost money to establish that fact.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

GARNER FOR DEBT SETTLEMENT
WASHINGTON—Any proposal to revise the war debts is certain to encounter fierce opposition in the Senate, but long before the issue reaches that point it would have to get by some high hurdles right within the Administration.

The inner council is sharply divided over the matter. One group, led by Secretary Cordell Hull, is strongly for negotiating new settlements with the defaulted European debtors. Another, headed by Vice President Jack Garner heatedly opposes any reopening of the issue.
Hull is chiefly responsible for the sudden revival of debt discussion. Fanatic in his desire to push his reciprocal trade policy, the Secretary of State seized on the war debts as a lever for new trade pacts. It was the intimation that war debt concessions might be bargained for trade concessions that underlay the burst of ballyhoo from Paris about French Government preparations to seek a new debt settlement.

Before the President departed for South America, Garner warned him against meddling with the war debts. The plain-talking Texan bluntly asserted this would court certain party dissension and political disaster.

Garner is telling friends that Roosevelt insisted he had no intention to engage in any debt revising negotiations.

SIESTA

It was like a scene in a musical comedy when Governor Blanton Winship fell asleep in conference the other day.

The stately Governor of Puerto Rico was giving audience in the Interior Department to the District Attorney of the city of Ponce, and two other lawyers. It was not siesta time, but Winship got sleepy, nodded, closed his eyes, slumbered.
With an expression of embarrassed surprise, the two lawyers looked at their colleague. But the District Attorney was undismayed. He had had experience with Winship's weakness.

DIET AND HEALTH

Middle Years of Life Probably the Healthiest

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
THAT PERIOD of life which extends roughly from the voting age to about 45, is probably the happiest, and certainly the most vigorous and creative period of existence.

From the medical standpoint, for the man who has come safely through the dangers of infancy, childhood and adolescence, without bringing any of the results of such infectious diseases as rheumatism or tuberculosis, this period presents few dangers from the physical side. Such a man has acquired immunity to practically all infectious diseases, and barring accidents should go through these two decades with a minimum number of visits to the doctor.

For the woman, the great hazard is that of child bearing. For that reason the health hazard and mortality rate among women is greater during this period than among men. After the age of 30 this is reversed and women have a lower mortality rate. Modern medical science has, of course, done a great deal to protect women from what the prayer book calls the "perils of childbirth."

It was not so very long ago that this event was presided over by midwives, ignorant, dirty and incompetent. Nowadays, as I pointed out a few weeks ago, the record of one hospital proves several thousand successive deliveries were made without a single maternal death, and not only that, but it can be made practically painless and the after-effects which lead often to a life of invalidism from torn muscles, are now taken care of satisfactorily so the woman returns to a normal life of health.

In other ways also modern medical science makes this period of life more comfortable and less hazardous. I think especially of the almost universal preventive treatment of cuts and wounds on the skin. In our grandfathers' day such wounds were bound up with dirty dressings, while nowadays convenient sterile packages of gauze are available. Such antiseptics as tincture of iodine should be in every bathroom closet.

It is customary to advise people in this stage of life about the hygienic effects of special kinds of diets, about the avoidance of tobacco and alcohol and the value of exercise.

It is also frequently recommended that people of this age should go once a year to have a so-called health audit. Personally, I feel about this advice that it should have appended to it the phrase which used to appear on brokers' announcements when they were advertising a new issue of stock. I think people should say that they do not guarantee the statements, although they come from sources which they deem reliable. Personally, I am not sure that these sources are so reliable.

There is no age at which we need pay so little attention to what we eat, and in which we can so safely and thoroughly enjoy our habits, uneconomic and vicious though they may be.

The BLOODHOUNDS Bay By WALTER S. MASTERMAN

READ THIS FIRST: Jack Reid, only witness to the mysterious murder of Sir Henry Severing in the chapel of his ancient abbey, is a do-gooder who has lived by his wits. In the chapel to steal a jeweled cross, Reid could raise no alarm at the time of the murder for fear of incriminating himself. Before Richard Selden is summoned from Scotland Yard, Reid, who has posed as an itinerant painter working at the abbey, Colonel Graham, a neighbor, and Eric Colindale, agent of the estate, trace Sir Henry's body to his father's coffin with the aid of bloodhounds. Selden and Fletcher, the local officer, interview Colindale and Reid, James, the butler, and Lady Hilda, who is in love with Colindale. Then they return to the inn. Mrs. Thornton, the housekeeper, comes to them with information, and a question. Reid tells Hilda that he is going to London to make inquiries. Colindale talks with Reid about Lady Hilda. Reid comes upon Sylvia Lawrence, governess of the two Severing children, who she hints at, frightful extent, the abbey and he offers to help her. Then Reid talks with Selden, the detective. (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 17
"YOU LIKE Colindale, do you?" Selden asked Reid.

Reid walked on in silence for a few minutes ignoring the question until they reached the fence at the end of the garden, beyond which the stream took its winding course from the old mill.

"That water flows from the lake," Reid said inconsequently. "Yes," Selden fell in with his mood. "It's clear enough; were one would hardly realize it came from that muddy stagnant place. It shows how easy it is to go wrong in one's judgments."

"You're a devil, Selden! I believe you can read thoughts," Reid laughed uneasily. "You are quite right. I neither liked nor disliked Colindale at first, but he made a request of me for help, as he was all alone at the Abbey—I mean as far as men friends are concerned—and I gave my word. Now that I have seen more of him, I'm not so sure that I care for him at all."

A faint smile passed across the face of the other, unseen in the gathering darkness. "He's not a pleasant character, so that now I suppose you don't find you are disposed to help him."

Darkness had come on rapidly, and only a faint greenish glow remained in the sky. Reid was at the bright glowing ends of the cigars showed in the gloom.

"You'll pardon me for saying so, but you seem damned inquisitive!" "I have a reason. Don't get annoyed—it's too serious a matter for that. I want your help, and you can't help us both."

Something in the grave voice arrested Reid. "What is it?"

"I must go. The solution of this problem depends on my investigations in London. Don't ask me to explain at present. But I am anxious about the people at the Abbey."

"People?" "The twin children, and"—he paused to emphasize his words—"Miss Lawrence."

As he spoke, Selden placed his hand lightly on Reid's shoulder and felt a sudden start, which told him what he wanted to know.

"Then I should have thought it was your duty to stay," Reid said, calm enough.

"I could do nothing. Mind you, Reid, I am taking you into my confidence, and I hope you will respect it. If I stay nothing will happen; the mere presence of a detective about the place will be sufficient, but it's when I have gone that danger threatens. I'm not trying to be theatrical. I mean it quite seriously. Now, can

I count on your help?" "I'm not going to act as a spy, if that's what you mean," Reid said indignantly.

"I wouldn't ask you to do so," Selden replied firmly. "Spying is a dirty business, but you already have the entree to the house through your position as an artist." Selden suddenly laughed outright.

"What's the joke?" Reid said, a sense of something coming making him alert and on his guard.

"My dear fellow, you left your painting gear on a seat this morning outside the Abbey when you came down here with Colindale."

"I did."

"I had a liberty on my part, but I had a look at your pictures, my dear friend—don't get ratty; I'm not an artist, but I do know something about art. Your daubs would not do credit to a flapper's drawing class."

"I always like a candid criticism. So you think I'm not much good as a painter?"

Reid held his breath, wondering whether the conversation was going to lead.

"May I hazard the guess," Selden said, "that something more romantic than painting an old building brought you here?"

He was getting on dangerous ground, and Reid took refuge in silence.

"I would not have mentioned this, but for the fact that I have a shrewd suspicion that knight errantry played some part in your adventure."

Reid's mind was in a whirl. Was the detective playing with him, or did he seriously think that he was down here because he already knew Sylvia and was in love with her?—for there could be no other interpretation to the suggestion. It was, however, a fortunate chance, for the badness of his pictures and his presence in the house might have caused the detective to think of other matters too near the truth.

"She was up at your cottage, wasn't she, with the twins?" Selden said, with a friendly squeeze.

If he wanted to think that there was a romance, it was just as well, Reid thought. It was rather a fortunate switch.

He managed to giggle like a lovesick swain. "You devil—you found that out, did you?"

"There wasn't much trouble, the twins were full of it when they came back."

"How did you find all this out?" "Miss Lawrence—a charming girl—told me. I met her on the way back from your cottage, when I was going there to return your painting outfit."

There was no getting into the mind of this man, and Reid left it at that.

"I took the liberty," Selden went on, "of giving Miss Lawrence a word of warning, but she did not need it. She's a brave girl, and fully alive to the danger."

"What danger?"

"Ah—if I knew that I would talk precautions," Selden said earnestly. "There is no heir to the estate, and the twins are the last of a long line now that Sir Henry has been brutally murdered."

"But surely you don't anticipate anything happening to the children—especially after one murder?"

"That's the most dangerous time. This murder shows deliberate and careful planning. Who knows whether, if the body had not been discovered by your brainwave of employing the bloodhounds, there might not be other disappearances?"

"What can I do?" Reid spoke with intense resolution, not in despair, as the words might have indicated.

"I could not say much in front of the children," Selden remarked, picking his words carefully; "but I want you to try whether you can't interview Miss Lawrence alone, and tell her to get the rooms, which she now occupies with the twins changed, and move into the front part of the house. That's the first thing. When that is done—and the sooner the better—you must find out where her new room is situated, and arrange some signal so that she can tell you when danger threatens. It all sounds very theatrical, but you must remember how completely shut off from the world this place is at night."

"It might be done," Reid said thoughtfully; "but I don't see how I can get into touch with her."

"Let me go in the morning, and I will be shutting me out."

They moved along the path, now quite dark, and Reid, without thinking, produced the electric torch he always carried, and switched on the light.

"Very useful, those things. That's the one you used in the crypt, I suppose?"

The words were spoken casually, and Reid guessed that Colonel Graham had recounted the event of the morning to Selden, but a sudden feeling of suspicion crossed his mind. Did this bright young detective think that he had played some part in the murder, and was trying to examine him in this way?

"You'll have a nightcap?" Selden suggested, when they had reached the sitting room.

Reid accepted. He had already decided on his course of action, reckless as he always was when the spirit took him.

"I shan't see you again, then, for some time," he queried, as he slowly sipped a whisky and soda.

"No, unless I am summoned by phone—you understand, I am depending on you a good deal. You will be going back to the cottage now?"

"I don't know, I suppose I shall, but it's a warm night and the moon will be up soon. I might have a stroll and think things over."

Selden's face was grave as he spoke. "Will you go to your cottage first before you take your stroll?"

"You're a rum fellow!—certainly, if you like."

They shook hands, and Reid gave a puzzled glance at Selden's impassive face. Here was something he could not fathom.

The moon was rising as he stepped out to the cottage across the fields. A strange sense of depression unusual with him held him in its grip, mixed with a certain exultation for which he could not account—for he knew nothing of the growing symptoms of passion. In many ways Jack Reid was a simple soul, mentally aloof from the world in which he lived, and with a desperate craving for adventure and something always over the horizon which eluded him—something less sordid than the life he had led, though he had no sense of shame, never having attempted to analyze the question of right and wrong.

Poems That Live

A CHILD'S LAUGHTER
All the bells of heaven may ring,
All the birds of heaven may sing,
All the wells on earth may spring,
All the winds on earth may bring
All sweet sounds together;
Sweeter far than all things heard,
Hand of harper, tone of bird,
Sound of woods at sundown stirred,
Welling water's winsome word,
Wind in warm, warm weather,
One thing yet there is, that none
Hearing ere its chime be done,
Knows not well the sweetest tone,
Heard of man beneath the sun,
Hoped in heaven hereafter;
Soft and strong and loud and light,
Very sound of very light,
Heard from morning's rosiest height,
When the soul of all delight,
Fills a child's clear laughter,
Gold bells of welcome rolled,
Never forth such note, nor told
Hours so blithe in tones so bold,
As the radiant mouth of gold
Here that rings forth heaven.
Here the golden-crested wren
Were a nightingale—why, then Something seen and heard of men
Might be half as sweet as when Laughs a child of seven.

IN less than three weeks the world will be poised for a great event—the observance of Christmas. In view of the part which this festival plays in the lives of individuals and of nations, it is not too early to begin to anticipate it with pleasure and even to prepare for its coming.

There is every basis for confidence that this coming Christmas will be happier by far than any in recent years. Many signs are at hand to prove that better times have returned and that those who share them are properly grateful. Not the least significant and impressive is the fact that in seventy-eight cities that have been collecting Community Chest subscriptions of late, more than $38,000,000 has been contributed.

Most conditions are favorable to a happy Christmas. Corporate dividends have been declared by the dozens, and wage and salary increases have been uncommonly numerous. Factory payrolls are up 13.6 per cent over last year, and there is a gain of 6 per cent in factory employment. According to Department of Commerce estimates, less than 9,000,000 are unemployed, the lowest figure since 1930. Farm income has increased materially, notwithstanding adverse weather conditions.

Great numbers of people, accordingly, are in a position to begin now the important and pleasant task of making their Christmas purchases. They have everything to gain by doing so. Some of the advantages may be considered as selfish while others involve thoughtful and humane considerations. Those who buy early have full stocks from which to make their selections and are not pressed and hurried by the crowds. In addition, they make somewhat easier the difficult task of the store and postal employees who, during the final days of the shopping season, must make heavy sacrifices of physical and mental energy in handling a mountain of work.

AFTER NECESSARY DATA

OFFICIALS of the Commerce Department are drafting plans for a national census of the unemployed. Congress will be asked to appropriate approximately $15,000,000 for the undertaking.

On first thought, this may seem like a large sum of money to set aside for the purpose in question. But there is reason to believe that the expenditure will save vast amounts of public funds in the long run.

Up to the present time, the Federal relief administration has been working in the dark. No one has known the exact scope of unemployment. Wastefulness

GARNER FOR DEBT SETTLEMENT

WASHINGTON—Any proposal to revise the war debts is certain to encounter fierce opposition in the Senate, but long before the issue reaches that point it will have to get by some high hurdles right within the Administration.

The inner council is sharply divided over the matter. One group, led by Secretary Cordell Hull, is strongly for negotiating new settlements with the defaulted European debtors. Another, headed by Vice President Jack Garner heatedly opposes any reopening of the issue.

Hull is chiefly responsible for the sudden revival of debt discussion. Fanatic in his desire to push his reciprocal trade policy, the Secretary of State seized on the war debts as a lever for new trade pacts.

It was the intimation that war debt concessions might be bargained for trade concessions that underlay the burst of ballyhoo from Paris about French Government preparations to seek a new debt settlement.

Before the President departed for South America, Garner warned him against meddling with the war debts. The plain-talking Texan bluntly asserted this would court certain party dissension and political disaster.

Garner is telling friends that Roosevelt insisted he had no intention to engage in any debt revising negotiations.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . Hour by Hour

PAGES from the Diary of an Antiquated Reporter:

Up to a bright and snappy morn, one of the kind that makes an oldster doubt the calendar as regards his age. A great day for living. Coffee and then away to the post by wagon, finding nothing more important than a bill for dues in an organization in which membership had been forgotten. And a card from friends in Florida where it seems swimming and fishing both are good. A fine place in wintertime, that peninsula, but right now would rather be right here absorbing some of the real spirit of approaching Christmas. How can one wear a swimming suit and think properly of Santa?

Here comes Fred Tipton, the Williamsport publisher, who for six weeks has been ill, but now is much improved. And his charming wife be-bundled with apparent Christmas things. Fred wishing out loud in her presence that Santa would bring him a razor for which the scrivener shows preference. He probably will.

folk spending more money than in recent years, and here comes Bob Terhune, the educator and super-athlete. Greeted cheerily by Clarence Wolf, the grocer, whose business has grown surprisingly in the last year, and by Dr. Montgomery and Meeker Terwilliger, the barrister.

Congratulations to the organizations responsible for the fine holiday decorations at Court and Main streets and to the many merchants for their fine window displays.

See by the paper that Eddie remains king and that popular support in the empire is swinging his way. And I think he will remain ruler, for he and the big-wigs of England spent two-score years popularizing him and all that advertising effort cannot be erased in a day. The common folk appear to be for him, apparently believing that he can be a competent king even though he fails to take a so-called blueblood for a wife.

Saddened by the passing of Mrs. Mazie Louella Valentine, a near neighbor, who commanded so much respect because of her grit and cheerfulness in the face of odds she knew were overwhelming. A fine woman who will be sorely missed.

Never knew until recently when started making frequent calls at school with a home taxi that dogs have an utter lack of confidence in their eyes. Up to a half dozen dogs "attend" the Corwin school daily, awaiting their boys or girls. And not one of them knows the master or mistress by sight. Saw one dog nose two colored children, among others, before finding his mistress, a pretty little blonde. Not at all important, but interesting.

Newspapermen from all over the state assembled Sunday night and Monday in Columbus and reported business improvement and even proved it by engaging in poker tilts among themselves. For small stakes, of course. Did partake sparingly and surprisingly came away with my shirt intact. When newspapermen play poker they mean it. And do they play them close! Incidentally a full house is not always the best hand. It cost money to establish that fact.

STAR SIGNALS

December 9

THOSE most likely to be affected by stellar vibrations today are those born from October 11 through 30.

General Indications Morning—Social.
Afternoon—Contradicting.
Evening—Contrary.

The day shows a jumble of influences, some good and some bad.

Birthdate

If you were born December 9 you should not consider your own personal amusement too important.

January, 1937, is bad for you. Real estate, property home conditions and those relating to the parents are sources through which disappointments may be expected. You should make financial plans during February, 1937. An outline on paper of your method of making money may be of valuable assistance later on.

Danger—September 6 through 13, 1937.

25 YEARS AGO

Simon F. Noggle, bookkeeper at the C. E. Sears & Co., canning plant was appointed a stenographer in the pension department at Washington, D. C.

Lewis Huber, Pickaway township, suffered a broken left arm in a fall.

The BLOODHOUNDS BAY

By WALTER S. MASTERMAN
COPYRIGHT, RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:
Jack Reid, only witness to the mysterious murder of Sir Henry Severing in the chapel of his ancient abbey, is a ne'er-do-well who has lived by his wits. In the chapel to steal a jeweled cross, Reid could raise no alarm at the time of the murder for fear of incriminating himself. Before Richard Selden is summoned from Scotland Yard, Reid, who has posed as an itinerant painter working at the abbey, Colonel Graham, a neighbor, and Eric Colindale, agent of the estate, trace Sir Henry's body to his father's coffin with the aid of bloodhounds. Selden and Hutchins, the local officer, interview Colindale and Reid, James, the butler, and Lady Hilda, who is in love with Colindale. Then, when they return to the inn, Mrs. Thornton, the housekeeper, comes to them with information and they question her. Selden tells Hutchins he is going to London to make inquiries. Colindale talks with Reid about Lady Hilda. Reid comes upon Sylvia Lawrence, governess of the two Severing children, and she hints at frightful experiences at the abbey and is offered to help her. Then Reid talks with Selden, the detective. (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.)

CHAPTER 17

"YOU LIKE Colindale, do you?" Selden asked Reid.

Reid walked on in silence for a few minutes ignoring the question until they reached the fence at the end of the garden, beyond which the stream took its winding course from the old mill.

"That water flows from the lake," Reid said inconsequently.

"Yes," Selden fell in with his mood. "It's clear enough here; one would hardly realize it came from that muddy, stagnant place. It shows how easy it is to go wrong in one's judgments."

"You're a devil, Selden! I believe you can read thoughts," Reid laughed uneasily. "You are quite right. I neither liked nor disliked Colindale at first, but he made a request of me for help, as he was all alone at the Abbey—I mean as far as men friends are concerned—and I gave my word. Now that I have seen more of him, I'm not so sure that I care for him at all."

A faint smile passed across the face of the other, unseen in the gathering darkness.

"He's not a pleasant character, so that now I suppose you don't find you are disposed to help him." Darkness had come on rapidly, and only a faint greenish glow remained in the west. Nothing but the bright glowing ends of the cigars showed in the gloom.

"You'll pardon me for saying so, but you seem daunted ineffectively." "I have a reason. Don't get annoyed—it's too serious a matter for that. I want your help, and you can't help us both."

Something in the grave voice arrested Reid.

"What is it?"

"I must go. The solution of this problem depends on my investigations in London. Don't ask me to explain at present. But I am anxious about the people at the Abbey."

"People?"

"The twin children, and"—he paused to emphasize his words—"Miss Lawrence."

As he spoke, Selden placed his hand lightly on Reid's shoulder and felt a sudden start, which told him what he wanted to know.

"Then I should have thought it was your duty to stay," Reid said, calm enough.

"I could do nothing. Mind you, Reid, I am taking you into my confidence, and I hope you will respect it. If I stay nothing will happen; the mere presence of a detective about the place will be sufficient, but it's when I have gone that danger threatens. I'm not trying to be theatrical. I mean it quite seriously. Now, can

I count on your help?" "I'm not going to act as a spy, if that's what you mean," Reid said indignantly. "I wouldn't ask you to do so," Selden replied firmly. "Spying is a dirty business, but you already have the entree to the house through your position as an artist." Selden suddenly laughed outright.

"What's the joke?" Reid said, a sense of something coming making him alert and on his guard. "My dear fellow, you left your painting gear on a seat this morning outside the Abbey when you came down here with Colindale."

"I did."

"It was a liberty on my part, but I had a look at your pictures, my dear friend—don't get ratty; I'm not an artist, but I do know something about art. Your daubs would not do credit to a flapper's drawing class."

"I always like a candid criticism. So you think I'm not much good as a painter?"

Reid held his breath, wondering whether the conversation was going to lead.

"May I hazard the guess," Selden said, "that something more romantic than painting an old building brought you here?"

He was getting on dangerous ground, and Reid took refuge in silence. "I would not have mentioned this, but for the fact that I have a shrewd suspicion that knight errantry played some part in your adventure."

Reid's mind was in a whirl. Was this detective playing with him, or did he seriously think that he was down here because he already knew Sylvia and was in love with her?—for there could be no other interpretation to the suggestion. It was, however, a fortunate chance, for the badness of his pictures and his presence in the house might have caused the detective to think of other matters too near the truth.

"She was up at your cottage, wasn't she, with the twins?" Selden said, with a friendly squeeze.

If he wanted to think that there was a romance, it was just as well, Reid thought. It was rather a fortunate switch.

He managed to giggle like a lovesick swain. "You devil—you found that out, did you?"

"There wasn't much trouble, the twins were full of it when they came back."

"How did you find all this out?" "Miss Lawrence—a charming girl—told me. I met her on the way back from your cottage, when I was going there to return your painting outfit."

There was no getting into the mind of this man, and Reid left it at that.

"I took the liberty," Selden went on, "of giving Miss Lawrence a word of warning, but she did not need it. She's a brave girl, and fully alive to the danger."

"What danger?"

"Ah—if I knew that I would take precautions," Selden said earnestly. "There is no heir to the estate, and the twins are the last of a long line now that Sir Henry has been brutally murdered."

"But surely you don't anticipate anything happening to the children—especially after one murder?"

"That's the most dangerous time. This murder shows deliberate and careful planning. Who knows whether, if the body had not been discovered by your brain-

wave of employing the bloodhounds, there might not be other disappearances?"

"What can I do?" Reid spoke with intense resolution, not in despair, as the words might have indicated.

"I could not say much in front of the children," Selden remarked, picking his words carefully; "but I want you to try whether you can't interview Miss Lawrence alone, and tell her to get the rooms which she now occupies with the twins changed, and move into the front part of the house. That's the first thing. When that is done—and the sooner the better—you must find out where her new room is situated, and arrange some signal so that she can tell you when danger threatens. It all sounds very theatrical, but you must remember how completely shut off from the world this place is at night."

"It might be done," Reid said thoughtfully; "but I don't see how I can get into touch with her."

"Let's go in, my worthy landlord will be shutting me out."

They moved along the path, now quite dark, and Reid, without thinking, produced the electric torch he always carried, and switched on the light.

"Very useful, those things. That's the one you used in the crypt, I suppose?"

The words were spoken casually, and Reid guessed that Colonel Graham had recounted the event of the morning to Selden; but a sudden feeling of suspicion crossed his mind. Did this bright young detective think that he had played some part in the murder, and was trying to examine him in this way?

"You'll have a nightcap?" Selden suggested, when they had reached the sitting room.

Reid accepted. He had already decided on his course of action, reckless as he always was when the spirit took him.

"I shan't see you again, then, for some time?" he queried, as he slowly sipped a whisky and soda.

"No, unless I am summoned by phone—you understand, I am depending on you a good deal. You will be going back to the cottage now?"

"I don't know, I suppose I shall; but it's a warm night and the moon will be up soon. I might have a stroll and think things over."

Selden's face was grave as he spoke. "Will you go to your cottage first before you take your stroll?"

"You're a rum fellow!—certainly, if you like."

They shook hands, and Reid gave a puzzled glance at Selden's impassive face. Here was something he could not fathom.

The moon was rising as he stepped out to the cottage across the fields. A strange sense of depression unusual with him held him in its grip, mixed with a certain exultation for which he could not account—for he knew nothing of the growing symptoms of passion. In many ways Jack Reid was a simple soul, mentally aloof from the world in which he lived, and with a desperate craving for adventure and something always over the horizon which eluded him—something less solid than the life he had led, though he had no sense of shame, never having attempted to analyze the question of right and wrong.

Poems That Live

A CHILD'S LAUGHTER

All the bells of heaven may ring.
All the birds of heaven may sing.
All the wells on earth may spring.
All the winds on earth may bring

All sweet sounds together;
Sweeter far than all things heard,
Hand of harper, tone of bird,
Sound of woods at sundown stirred,

Welling water's winsome word,
Wind in warm, warm weather.
One thing yet there is, that none,
Hearing ere its chime be done,

Knows not well the sweetest ear,
Heard of man beneath the sun,
Hoped in heaven hereafter;
Soft and strong and loud and light,
Very sound of very light,

Heard from morning's rosiest height,
When the soul of all delight,
Fills a child's clear laughter.
Gold bells of welcome rolled,
Never forth such note, nor told
Hours so blithe in tones so bold,
As the radiant mouth of gold

Here that rings forth heaven.
If the golden-crested wren
Were a nightingale—why, then,
Something seen and heard of men
Might be half as sweet as when Laughs a child of seven.

—Algernon Charles Swinburne.

Monday Club Informed of Scandinavian Writers

The literature division of the Monday club, presented the lives of two women writers of the Scandinavian countries, Monday evening, with Mrs. Frank Bennett as chairman.

"National literature begins with fables and ends with novels."

—Joubert, Pensees No. 383.

Mrs. Emmitt Crist read a paper about Selma Lagerlof. In 1891, Alfred Nobel, a Swedish inventor, provided one of the most inspiring benefactions to humanity. He stipulated that five prizes be distributed every year to individuals, who during each respective year had made the greatest contributions to progress and learning in the fields of physics, chemistry, physiology, or medicine, literature and international peace. The fund which he donated to these purposes was $9,200,000 of which the interest, amounting usually to $200,000 is awarded by the trustees.

This gives each recipient, about $40,000. The Nobel Foundation is formed of a president appointed by the Swedish government and four other members, chosen for a two year term, by fifteen deputies named by the bodies entrusted by the donor with the awards. The Foundation has care of the funds to which one tenth is annually added, while a fourth is deducted in the main for the use of the Nobel Institute. These Institutes include the Swedish Academy, the Nobel Institute for physics and chemistry and the Norwegian Peace Institute. In 1909, the Nobel prize award in literature read as follows: "To Selma Lagerlof, of Sweden, the award because of the noble idealism, the wealth of fancy and the quality that characterizes her works."

This year of 1936 the award was made to a German, who has spent the last three years in a Nazi prison camp. "Time" magazine has commented on this, in last week's edition. Perhaps Miss Lagerlof's most widely and most beloved book is the one written to acquaint the children of Sweden with their homeland. It is called "The Wonderful Adventure of Nils." "Men and Trolls," contains her famous suffrage speech delivered in 1911 in Stockholm. Her own autobiography was written in a charming manner. She

Now! SCIENCE PROVES THAT BREAD, ITSELF Is not fattening

LEADING doctors and nutritionists, in a series of laboratory tests, have found that Bread, itself, is not fattening. In one test, a large group of women were given the same amounts of the same foods, and one-half of all the food they ate was Bread. The women of normal weight neither gained nor lost. The overweight women lost weight!

Bread helps to burn up body fat, protects the body from acidosis, and supplies energy for being active.

Let science be your guide when it comes to eating Bread. And science says that Bread is your best and cheapest energy food!

This paper was followed by a well-written one of "Sigrid Undset" and read by Mrs. Charles Gilmore.

Sigrid Undset is unquestionably one of the greatest of all women writers today. Early in her career, she realized that the middle class, throughout history, offered a vast store of material, which presented realistically, could appeal to an audience as wide as that of Stindberg or Ibsen and far more appreciative. The books have been translated into fourteen foreign languages and received in 1928, after the publication of "Kristin Lavransdatter", the Nobel prize, for her powerful delineation of medieval life. She was born, 1882, in Denmark. Her father, a noted Norwegian archaeologist, her mother was Danish. In "Jenny", written in 1911, she has the only character to run away from life. In all the rest of her books, there is a certain dogged determination to see things through and face the consequences. Shortly after writing this, she married A. C. WATSON GIVEN DECISION OVER TOUGHIE ASHBY

Stacy Hall Pins Sherman in Splendid Exhibition of Many Holds

PATRICK FIGHTS FERGUSON

McDonald Given Nod Over Hill After Foul

Cleveland's boxing and wrestling fans found no complaints Monday night on the athletic show they witnessed in the C.A.C. gymnasium. It was the best presented in Cleveland in many seasons.

Five grapplers, brought here through the cooperation of Al Hart capital city promoter, staged three fast and interesting contests using all their tricks of showmanship. Seven fast rounds of boxing were presented by local boys. Eddie Watson, local amateur, won a decision in his grunt contest with Spike Ashby. Flint Mich., in the roughest contest of the evening, Ashby was slightly "off form" and gave Watson some experience in bad tactics. These tactics and Watson's aggressiveness resulted in decision for the local boy.

Ashby was far from satisfied with the decision and wanted to continue the contest after the 30-minute limit. Patrolman Alva Shasteen persuaded him to leave the mat. Both grapplers weighed 150.

Sandy McDonald, Glasgow, Scotland, won a decision from Henry Hill, Bismark, N. D., in a snappy 30-minute struggle. The decision was awarded on a foul. The grapplers were well-matched and presented an interesting contest. McDonald weighed 170, Hill 165.

Stacy Hall, former Big 10 wrestling champ, pinned Pete Sherman, of Topeka, Kan., in 23 minutes of scientific wrestling with a hook scissors. The contest was fast, clean, and slugging was omitted. Hall's weight was announced at 160, Sherman's 168.

Walter Davis, Columbus, was the wrestling official. His size and weight discouraged any arguments, especially after he handled Ashby's complaints.

Draw Announced
Irvin Patrick, New Holland, substituted for Glenn Weaver in the four-round boxing event with Doc Ferguson, county amateur heavyweight champ. Officials said Weaver's parents objected to his appearance in the match. Ferguson took the first half of the bout. Patrick the last two rounds and the crowd was satisfied when R. R. Bales and Gerald Hanley, judges, announced it a draw. Ferguson tipped the scales at 180. Patrick weighed 176.

Jimmy Emerine and Bob Alexander, local boys, fought a fast three-round preliminary with the judges giving them a draw. Their weights were not announced. Ralph Wallace was boxing referee. Bill Pickens announced all events.

Another card is being arranged for Dec. 14. C.A.C. officials announced, with Haft sending down some more grapplers. The attendance at Monday night's show was 300.

Wednesday Midnight Dean Trade Deadline

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(UP)—Dizzy Dean will be traded by Wednesday midnight or not at all, Branch Rickey, vice-president of the St. Louis Cardinals, said today as the major leagues opened their annual mid-winter meetings.

"A week ago I thought we would trade Dean," he said, "and I still think so but it will have to be within the next two days."

The Pirates, Cubs and Giants are the leading bidders in that order. Rickey had a 3-hour conference yesterday with William Benswanger, Pittsburgh president. Up to now Rickey's price has been outlandish. But he has come down and is giving the Pirates first crack.

Demand Reduced
After canvassing several national league clubs and finding that the Cardinals' fireball hurler wasn't coveted at Rickey's price, the St. Louis owners scaled their demands. This was tacitly admitted when the cards reopened negotiations again yesterday with the pirates.

The Dean trade has gotten completely out of control, and it's hard to separate the rumors from the facts.

The general impression is that the Pirates have offered Pitcher Cy Blanton, Outfielder Woody Jensen, Catcher Tom Padden, Three rookies and cash for Dean. P. K. Wrigley, president of the Chicago Cubs, says he doesn't want Dean but it may be said that an official of the Cubs refused to wage a hat that Dizzy wasn't stitching elsewhere next.

The Pirates poor-plan the suggestion that they are dickering for Dean.

A year ago Bill Terry said Dean and Hubbell could win the pennant for any team in the league. So much for Dizzy. The next riddle is what Commissioner K. M. Landis will do in the Bob Feller case. Landis may declare the 21-year-old schoolboy pitcher a free agent or let him stay with Cleveland. If Feller is ruled a free agent, he will be free to sell his services to the highest bidder. He might bring $100,000 in the open market if major league clubs are allowed to bid for him but Landis may confine the bidding to the minors alone.

One of the unsung heroes of the Scioto township basketball team is Billy Beavers. Tall and clever defensive man — Many of the countians who saw Scioto take Asheville last Friday evening, 26-13, say Beavers is the best ball-handler in the county this year — With he and Smoky Williams on the same team there's lots of ball-digging going on. * * *

Three New Red Birds

It looks like the rebuilding process might be under way at Columbus — The Red Birds have sent Mickey Owen up for three good ball players, Chick Fullis, Lynn King and Ed Heusser — Or the bunch Heusser should be the pick — Fullis and King are outfielders, both fast and fair hitters.

More Cards Assured

The success of last night's wrestling-boxing card means that more contests will be conducted in the Athletic Club gymnasium during the winter — The Hall-Sherman bout and all others proved crowd-pleasers — It was too bad Glenn Weaver did not show up to fight Doc Ferguson in a contest many fans looked forward to seeing. * * *

300 CHEERING FANS PLEASED WITH ATHLETIC CLUB'S MIXED PROGRAM

WATSON GIVEN DECISION OVER TOUGHIE ASHBY

Stacy Hall Pins Sherman in Splendid Exhibition of Many Holds

PATRICK FIGHTS FERGUSON

McDonald Given Nod Over Hill After Foul

Circleville's boxing and wrestling fans found no complaints Monday night on the athletic show they witnessed in the C.A.C. gymnasium. It was the best presented in Circleville in many seasons.

Five grapplers, brought here through the cooperation of Al Haft capital city promoter, staged three fast and interesting contests using all their tricks of showmanship. Seven fast rounds of boxing were presented by local boys.

Eddie Watson, local amateur, won a decision in his grunt contest with Spike Ashby, Flint, Mich., in the roughest contest of the evening. Ashby was slightly "off form" and gave Watson some experience in bad tactics. These tactics and Watson's aggressiveness resulted in decision for the local boy.

Ashby Puts on Show
Ashby was far from satisfied with the decision and wanted to continue the contest after the 30-minute limit. Patrolman Alva Shasteen persuaded him to leave the mat. Both grapplers weighed 150.

Sandy McDonald, Glasgow, Scotland, won a decision from Henry Hill, Bismark, N. D., in a snappy 30-minute struggle. The decision was awarded on a foul. The grapplers were well-matched and presented an interesting contest. McDonald weighed 170, Hill 165.

Stacy Hall, former Big 10 wrestling champ, pinned Pete Sherman, of Topeka, Kan., in 23 minutes of scientific wrestling with a hook scissors. The contest was fast, clean, and slugging was omitted. Hall's weight was announced at 160, Sherman's 168.

Walter Davis, Columbus, was the wrestling official. "His size and weight discouraged any arguments, especially after he handled Ashby's complaints."

Draw Announced
Irvin Patrick, New Holland, substituted for Glenn Weaver in the four-round boxing event with Doc Ferguson, county amateur heavyweight champ. Officials said Weaver's parents objected to his appearance in the match. Ferguson took the first half of the bout, Patrick the last two rounds and the crowd was satisfied when R. R. Bales and Gerald Hanley, judges, announced it a draw. Ferguson tipped the scales at 180. Patrick weighed 176.

Jimmy Emerline and Bob Alexander, local boys, fought a fast three-round preliminary with the judges giving them a draw. Their weights were not announced. Ralph Wallace was boxing referee. Bill Pickens announced all events.

Another card is being arranged for Dec. 14, C.A.C. officials announced, with Haft sending down some more grapplers. The attendance at Monday night's show was 300.

Wednesday Midnight Dean Trade Deadline

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(UP)—Dizzy Dean will be traded by Wednesday midnight or not at all, Branch Rickey, vice-president of the St. Louis Cardinals, said today as the major leagues opened their annual mid-winter meetings.

"A week ago I thought we would trade Dean," he said, "and I still think so but it will have to be within the next two days."

The Pirates, Cubs and Giants are the leading bidders in that order. Rickey had a 3-hour conference yesterday with William Benswanger, Pittsburgh president. Up to now Rickey's price has been outlandish. But he has come down and is giving the Pirates first crack.

Demand Reduced
After canvassing several national league clubs and finding that the Cardinals' fireball hurler wasn't coveted at Rickey's price, the St. Louis owners scaled their demands. This was tacitly admitted when the cards reopened negotiations again yesterday with the pirates.

The Dean trade has gotten completely out of control, and it's hard to separate the rumors from the facts.

The general impression is that the Pirates have offered Pitcher Cy Blanton, Outfielder Woody Jensen, Catcher Tom Padden, Three rookies and cash for Dean. P. K. Wrigley, president of the Chicago Cubs, says he doesn't want Dean but it may be said that an official of the Cubs refused to vager a hat that Dizzy wasn't itching elsewhere next. The Giants poor-pan the suggestion that they are dickering for Dean. A year ago Bill Terry said Dean and Hubbell could win the pennant for any team in the league.

So much for Dizzy. The next riddle is what Commissioner K. M. Landis will do in the Bob Feller case. Landis may declare the 17-year-old schoolboy pitcher a free agent or let him stay with Cleveland. If Feller is ruled a free agent, he will be free to sell his services to the highest bidder. He might bring $100,000 in the open market if major league clubs are allowed to bid for him but Landis may confine the bidding to the minors alone.

RALPH GULDAHL WINS BILTMORE DESPITE PENALTY

CORAL GABLES, Fla., Dec. 8 (UP)—Despite a two-stroke penalty that prevented him tying the tournament record, Ralph Gulda of St. Louis today was winner of the Miami Biltmore's seventh annual golf open and $2,500 richer. Gulda shot a 283 for the 72 holes, two strokes better than runner-up Horton Smith of Chicago, who shot par 71 over the last 18 holes to collect second prize money of $1,250 with 285.

The veteran Gene Sarazen, New York, and Harold "Jug" McSpaden, Winchester, Mass., tied one stroke back of Smith and split third and fourth money aggregating $1,750.

MISSISSIPPI '11' PICKED TO PLAY IN MIAMI BOWL

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 8.—(UP)—Mississippi State will carry the southern banner against Duquesne here New Year's day in the annual Orange Bowl football game.

Selection of the Maroons who have lost only to Louisiana State and Alabama, to represent the south was announced today. The choice was a surprise because negotiations had been carried on chiefly with Tennessee and Texas Christian.

Tigers at Academy

The Tigers of the Red and Black jerseys will taste their first real test Friday afternoon on the Columbus Academy court — The game is played at 4 o'clock because Academy claims it cannot draw crowds at night — The Tigers have gained some confidence after defeating Jackson township's better-than-average crew last Saturday night, but they realize that to defeat Academy they must improve. * * *

Three New Red Birds

It looks like the rebuilding process might be under way at Columbus — The Red Birds have sent Mickey Owen up for three good ball players, Chick Fullis, Lynn King and Ed Heusser — Of the bunch Heusser should be the pick — Fullis and King are outfielders, both fast and fair hitters. * * *

More Cards Assured

The success of last night's wrestling-boxing card means that more contests will be conducted in the Athletic Club gymnasium during the winter — The Hall-Sherman bout and all others proved crowd-pleasers — It was too bad Glenn Weaver did not show up to fight Doc Ferguson in a contest many fans looked forward to seeing. * * *

Beavers Fast Guard

One of the unsung heroes of the Scioto township basketball team is Billy Beavers, tall and clever defensive man — Many of the countians who saw Scioto take Ashville last Friday evening, 26-13, say Beavers is the best ball-handler in the county this year — With he and Smoky Williams on the same team there's lots of ball-digging going on. * * *

AIR RACES OPEN DEC. 10 IN MIAMI

MIAMI, Fla. (UP) — Ushered in with a roar of motors on Dec. 10, the nation's major midwinter aviation jamboree will hold the stage here for three days, with speed dashes and a variety of flying competitions featuring the ninth annual Miami All-American Air Maneuvers.

Military and civilian planes are warming up at the All-American airport, and units of the service flying force are checking in at nearby Florida air fields which are annually used to accommodate the overflow of the air argosy.

Interest is focused on the first international sportsman pilots' race from America to Cuba, one of the outstanding innovations of the three-day meet. This overseas flying marathon, open only to civilian pilots, will start from Miami on Sunday, Dec. 13.

Rigid examination of entrants and their planes will be made before the fight because of the hazards of the 243-mile ocean journey to Camp Colombia at Havana. To the winner will be awarded gold pilot wings embossed with coat of arms of Havana.

Nine outstanding races are on the program to challenge the crack speed pilots of the country, among whom will be Mrs. Louise Thaden, winner of the $15,000 Bendix Transcontinental Race from New York to Los Angeles.

Headline events on the racing program are the Glenn Curtis Trophy Race for ships of unlimited displacement and the Col. E. H. R. Green Trophy Race for ships of 850 cubic inches displacement, carrying cash prizes of $1,200 each.

Military participation in the meet will be this year by three squadrons of the U. S. Marine Corps, comprising 48 planes, demonstrating service flying formations, dive bombing and tactical maneuvers. * * *

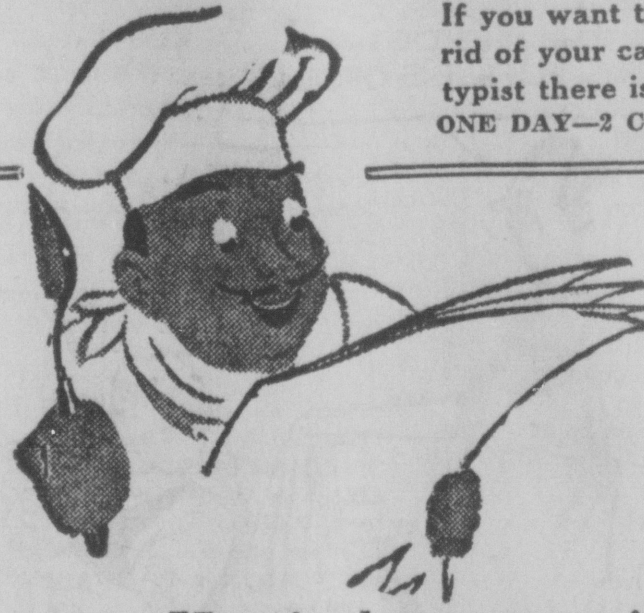

CUBAN FIGHTER LOSES IN FIRST COMEBACK BOUT

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(UP)—Kid Chocolate of Cuba, former featherweight champion of the world, lost his first comeback attempt last night when he dropped a 10-round decision to Phil Baker of Norwalk, Conn., before a capacity crowd of 5,000 at St. Nicholas' arena.

For one round he looked like the Cuban "bon bon" of old, but he soon stumbled and was swinging clumsily, his blows lacking their former dynamite. Winning only two rounds, Chocolate looked like a novice against the hard swinging Baker. Both weighed 129½.

GOPHER SCHOOL MAY CURTAIL 4-YEAR STUDY

MINNEAPOLIS (UP) — Possible elimination of the four-year courses from the curriculum in view of dropping enrollment in undergraduate courses was seen today by Dr. L. D. Coffman, president of the University of Minnesota.

Coffman said that although his school registered increased enrollment over last year, the freshmen and sophomore groups were smaller. Greatest increases were in the technical and professional schools.

"There is nothing sacred about the four-year university course," Coffman said. "Efficient junior colleges can take care of the first two years of advance education. That would leave the universities free to concentrate on advance students."

Coffman said that if the preliminary work were to be removed from the university's curriculum it would be possible to raise scholarships by making entrance requisites more exacting and examinations more difficult.

BUCK AROUSED BY BIRD SHOT FIGHTS HUNTER

HERKIMER, N. Y. (UP) — Gordon Clark, hunting rabbits with a shotgun loaded with bird shot, came upon a 200-pound 11-point buck in the northern Herkimer County woods.

The temptation, he said, was so great that he forgot all about rabbits and turned the light weapon on the deer.

The pellets merely stung the deer, and Clark and David Caldwell, a companion, ran for shelter when the animal charged. The pair dodged about trees and the buck strayed ahead.

Clark reloaded and followed, only this time he used heavy buckshot, ordinarily used for deer. He trailed the deer for six hours before shooting. The animal dropped and Clark approached with his knife for the kill.

But the buck jumped up, and rushing Clark, broke his gunstock and ripped the hunter's clothing. A moment later, however, the buck fell dead.

PLAYING SAFE WON TOP
IN A SEVEN-TABLE Howell movement the deal shown resulted in varied scores, that were interesting. Only East and West were vulnerable. At each table bidding opened with 1-Diamond by East. South overcalled with 1-Heart. After which the bidding varied widely.

Two East players played 3-No Trumps. One of these made top score, by taking 5-odd tricks. The other went down a trick for bottom score. Second score went to a West bidder of 4-Spades, who fulfilled his contract. Three tables tied for third place, by bidding and making 5-Diamonds. Next to bottom score went to one East player who doubled 2-Hearts and defeated the contract three tricks. The difference in scores between the two declarers of 3-No Trumps was the real lesson for students of the game. Note what happened. In both cases the opening lead was the 7 of hearts, on which North played the Q, holding the trick. The 8 of hearts was covered with the 10 and South held the trick with his J. When the third round of hearts was led declarer was in with his Ace, certain that North held no more of the suit to lead back, in case he held the K of spades and won a trick on a finesse. Play went the same way at both tables. Subsequent play also went alike for the next few tricks. Doubtless both East players counted trick certainties in the same manner. But what a difference in final results, between top score and bottom score. There were in sight at least 3 spade tricks, 4 club tricks, which with the one trick stored away for the Ace of hearts and one certainly for the Ace of diamonds insured gain. The Q and J of spades were led and held the next two tricks. Then the Ace and K of clubs took two tricks. The J of clubs was overtaken with dummy's Q, and on the 10 of clubs declarer let go his lowest diamond. He let go another low diamond on the Ace of spades, giving him eight tricks. Then he led the 10 of diamonds. When the K did not appear he put up the Ace, dropping the lone K from South's hand. After which declarer took two added diamond tricks, giving him two tricks over his contract—just by playing carefully. Both no trump bidders counted South's hand. Each knew that South originally held 4 spades, 5 hearts, 1 diamond and 3 clubs. The one who won top score knew that there were 3 in 4 chances that North still held the K of diamonds, after playing the 3. He took no chances. The other declarer took chances and lost.

WPA WORKERS TO BE ASSIGNED TO FOUR PROJECTS WEDNESDAY

SEWER SYSTEM IN CINCINNATI LISTED IN JOBS

Darby and Perry Township Roads, Rural Sanitation to be Included

LOCAL OFFICE SURPRISED

Resumption of Federal Talks Makes 211 Employed

Work will resume Wednesday on four WPA projects furnishing employment to 94 men.

The projects to be reopened are the Darby and Perry township road jobs, rural sanitation program and the extension of the city's sanitary sewer system.

Assignment cards for the men were received Tuesday morning by Vattier Courtwright, local field engineer, from the district office at Cincinnati.

Reopening of the projects Wednesday came as a surprise to the local office. Reports were circulated around the city building Tuesday that several projects were to be reopened but officials termed them rumors.

All projects with the exception of the Hargus creek and Pike Hole bridge jobs and the sewing centers were suspended on Monday, Nov. 24, to make more men available for corn husking.

The new assignments will make 211 persons on WPA. A total of 117, of which 55 were women employed at sewing centers, have been working since the suspension order was placed in effect.

ONE MINUTE PULPIT

The tongue of the just is as choice silver; the heart of the wicked is little worth.—Proverbs 10:20.

The Hammel property on N. Court street, purchased by Press Hosler, is being completely remodeled by T. M. Barnes, local contractor. Mr. Hosler is increasing the size of his shop in connection with the work.

Fred Tipton, Williamsport publisher and deputy county auditor who has been ill for several weeks, was a visitor in Circleville Monday afternoon. He hopes to return to his duties soon.

Evan Reichelderfer, Chillicothe, is a patient in the Chillicothe hospital. Mr. Reichelderfer is a former Circleville resident. He was injured recently when struck by an automobile.

City council will hold an adjourned session Wednesday night to consider a contract with Floyd G. Browne, Marion, O., engineer, for preparing plans, specifications and working out details for the new disposal plant.

Mrs. George Milligan, was removed from White Cross hospital to her home on E. Franklin street Tuesday in the Rinehart ambulance.

The Pickaway county Gun Club will have a practice shoot Thursday evening in the Armory.

Ed Strawser, Elm avenue, who suffered a broken left elbow at the Container Corporation last Saturday, was removed from Berger hospital to his home Tuesday.

Peggy Louise Harris, colored, underwent a tonsilectomy Tuesday in Berger hospital.

Mrs. Donald Platt, of near Mt. Sterling, underwent an emergency major operation in Berger hospital Monday afternoon.

All Rainbow division veterans who would like to attend a rabbit supper sponsored by the Lancaster chapter of Rainbow divisions should contact Roy E. Norris, commander of the Veterans' of Foreign Wars, prior to 6 p. m. Wednesday. The rabbit supper will be Wednesday evening.

Mrs. W. B. Watts, E. Mount street, has received word of the death of her sister, Mrs. John Inboden, in Pataskala. Mrs. Inboden was the former Myrtle Shaw, native of Circleville.

Members of the Pickaway Farmer's and Sportsman's association will meet in the Elks home at 7:30 Tuesday. All interested sportsmen are invited to attend the meeting.

Arrangements are being worked out for the local WPA sewing center to make rag dolls and animals for distribution to needy children on Christmas. The work will be done in connection with the toy campaign being conducted by firemen.

ACTRESS, FLYER UNINJURED WHEN AIRPLANE FALLS

JACKSON, Dec. 8—(UP)—Marjorie J. Gage, actress, and her pilot, Robert Blair, both of Hollywood, escaped injury today when their 6-passenger Lockheed monoplane crashed, nine miles north of here.

Miss Gage, a contestant in the Ruth Chatterton air derby last year, and Blair, pilot for Miss Chatterton, went to Columbus by bus after the accident. Miss Gage will continue to New York later today and Blair will attempt to salvage the plane.

The fliers were forced down last night by darkness and stayed all night in Jackson. When they attempted to take off from a rough

Relief Organized
The government began immediately to organize relief.

An airplane was dispatched to the flooded area to survey its extent. A customs cutter was ordered to stand by to carry food, medicine and physicians.

Secretary of the Interior Elpidio Quirino took personal charge of relief operations and hastily convened a relief committee committee composed of prominent citizens and Red Cross officials. Preparations were made to rush food and medical supplies to the inundated provinces to ward off starvation and epidemics.

Red Cross units began mobilizing for relief as first reports said that almost half of Isabela province's 4,467 square miles were inundated, while a large portion of Nueva Vizcaya province's 1,950 square miles also was under water.

The two provinces which are north of Manila are among the most fertile in the Philippine islands. Isabela province lies between the Sierra Madre oriental and the Caraballo mountains. In the beautiful, rich valleys are raised tobacco, livestock, grain and timber.

Nueva Vizcaya, the central province of Luzon, produces rice and livestock. The swift and deep Rio De Grande Cagayan, largest river in Luzon, runs through the heart of the two provinces, rising in the south and flowing northwest for 220 miles to Aparri. It is a navigable stream for nearly 200 miles.

SIX PRISONERS IN SOLITARY AS ESCAPE FAILS

COLUMBUS, Dec. 8—(UP)—Six Ohio penitentiary convicts were in solitary confinement today, brooding over failure of a plot to escape.

The six—three of them murderers—surrendered in abject fear once they were discovered. The attempted break was made in the "idle L" block which houses a death row. The only occupant of a death cell, William Gardner, Columbus, refused to go with the six when they offered to open his cell, telling them they "didn't have a chance to escape."

Two civilian guards—W. R. Spencer and W. V. Rauch—were returning 34 men to their cells after the evening meal when the break was made. As the men filed up narrow stairs suddenly several of them turned and overpowered the two guards, bound them with strips of towels and took their keys from them. The guards and four orderlies were marched up the steps at the point of knives and locked in cells.

ENJOY HOLIDAYS BY KEEPING YOURSELF FIT

Correct Extraordinary Eating and Sleeping Habits This Way

The holiday season is filled with dinners, parties and dances. And it is so easy when enjoying all the fun and pleasure of the season to over-indulge in eating or drinking and to stay up too late.

Consequently, the system gets awry and often develops ordinary headaches due to sluggish bowels and too much acid condition in the stomach.

You can guard against this disturbing condition by taking a spoonful of Rexall Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water every night before going to bed. And, if necessary take another spoonful in the morning before breakfast.

You can take Rexall Milk of Magnesia with comfort because it is so lacking in that usual disagreeable earthy taste.

You can get a full pint of the super-white Rexall Milk of Magnesia at the Rexall Drug Store for only 35c.

Tomorrow, go to the Rexall Drug Store, Hamilton & Ryan, Pythian Castle, N. Court st., and get a pint bottle of Rexall Milk of Magnesia so you can start using it at once. Then you can enjoy the holidays better because you will be able to stimulate bowel action and to keep down excess acidity, and keep feeling fit.

NEW SALES TAX ACTION HINTED IN LEGISLATURE

COLUMBUS, Dec. 8—(UP)—A bill to super-impose a three per cent gross receipts tax on the present retail sales tax will be introduced to the special "lame duck" session of the legislature, it was learned today. The bill would establish the three per cent gross receipts tax as a basis of the sales tax law. If any revenues over the three per cent levy on receipts were collected by the merchants, they would be turned over to the state.

94 WPA WORKERS TO BE ASSIGNED TO FOUR PROJECTS WEDNESDAY

SEWER SYSTEM IN CLEVELAND LISTED IN JOBS

Darby and Perry Township Roads, Rural Sanitation to be Included

Resumption of Federal Talks Makes 211 Employed

Work will resume Wednesday on four WPA projects furnishing employment to 94 men.

The projects to be reopened are the Darby and Perry township road jobs, rural sanitation program and the extension of the city's sanitary sewer system.

Assignment cards for the men were received Tuesday morning by Vattier Courtwright, local field engineer, from the district office at Chillicothe.

Reopening of the projects Wednesday came as a surprise to the local office. Reports were circulated around the city building Tuesday that several projects were to be reopened but officials termed them rumors.

All projects with the exception of the Hargus creek and Pike Hole bridge jobs and the sewing centers were suspended on Monday, Nov. 24, to make more men available for corn husking.

The new assignments will make 211 persons on WPA. A total of 117, of which 55 were women employed at sewing centers, have been working since the suspension order was placed in effect.
